

PAINTING IN MAEGHT GALLERY

Robert W. Case

During a recent visit to this gallery in France, I came across the attached painting. Unfortunately, I did NOT write down the artist, and the provenance of this painting is unknown to me. Apparently, this is one of the paintings acquired from the collection of Aime & Marguerite Maeght. This couple bought paintings from Jews that had fled to the south of France during WWII, as well as exchanging food for artworks from Marguerite's father's grocery store in Cannes.

If ANYONE knows something about this painting, please contact this writer at “ bobcele@yahoo.com” Thank you!
